The CMS provides individuals with the tools to self-diagnose their capability levels benchmarked against industry standards and further apply development interventions which can be self-directed.

The Industry Competency Framework (ICF), a repository of the Malaysian capital market competency framework where the model comprises 4 competency types, 58 competency titles, 5 proficiency levels & 105 generic job roles across the main regulated activities.

It uses the situational judgement test approach and a robust algorithm to determine the level of competency

The Development Advisor, a personalised development guide generated based on the individual's self-assessment report. The development advisor not only identifies training courses, but a holistic development plan for the individual, which includes:

Reflect & Develop

Mind Boosters

Dive in for a deeper insight on what an identified competency entails through our list of suggested reading materials and e-learning materials including videos and podcast
